Sharing the JobOne Story

Introducing new opportunities to connect

JobOne is doubling down on our efforts to spread the word about the great work of our staff and employees. In the coming week, we will launch our new website, www.job1one.org. This up-to-date site was created with simplicity and ease in mind, and with the goal of improving communication and attracting new customers and friends. On the back end of our site is a robust SEO (Search Engine Optimization) effort which will lead to more 'hits' when people are searching for business services that JobOne can provide. We are confident that this will lead to more inquiries for our services and eventually, new customers for our various lines of business.

In addition to our more robust, redesigned website, we are increasing our social media presence with frequent postings on all the major social media platforms. Social media is a great way to inform our friends of timely news such as weather-related closings, telling success stories, and sharing news that is relevant to JobOne. Find us @Job1One.

JobOne is a community-based nonprofit that enjoys outstanding support. We have a great story to tell and we are excited to enhance our communications efforts in 2016.

Making an Impact with Meaningful Job Opportunities

Josh showed an interest in performing janitorial duties at the JobOne subcontracting workshop. When one of his co-workers decided that they no longer wanted to perform those duties on a daily basis, a position became open. He has a positive outlook with his new tasks and completes them thoroughly. He remembers how he was trained by a former employee and performs additional tasks that have not been completed in a while. He stays focused and manages his time well, completing his tasks in a sufficient manner. Staff

Helping Hands Make Our Workspace Brighter

Thank you to David Hogan for painting the Blue Springs conference room. David has now completed the lunchroom, reception area, and conference room. This has really freshened up the building and we so appreciate the time he dedicated to this project! Pictured is David's son John who is very proud of his Dad's work.
